

NINETY-FOURTH YEAR.

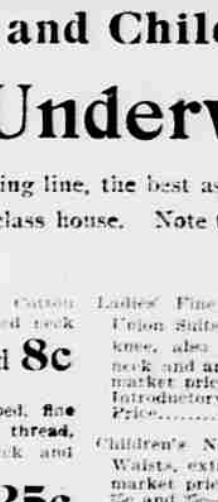

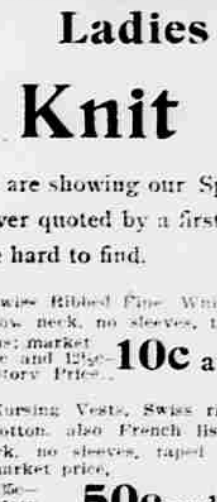

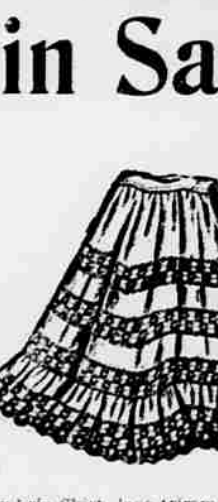

ST. LOUIS, MO., SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1902.

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

OUR SNOW-CAPPED MOUNTAIN SALE!! Begins in the Morning. EVERYTHING WHITE AND SNOWY, from the BUILDING ITSELF to the MILK IN THE CAFE!! WE ARE NOT TRYING TO SHEAR THE LAMBS With a lot of BOGLUSS TUFF, gotten up especially for 50-CALLED (CHEAP SALES, THE VERIEST TRASH—NOT WORTHY OF HOUSE-ROOM!! We offer only Our Own Regular and Very Superior Lines of Goods (second to none), the CREAM OF THE MARKET and the very First Fruits of the Looms of this OUR OWN COUNTRY, and of THE COUNTRIES OF EUROPE, and, to crown all, WE LIMIT NOTHING and sell it to you AT A LOWER PRICE than is sold the SCUM OF THE EARTH!!

Our Snow-Capped Mountain Sale.

Nainsook Chemise Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Cambric Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Cambric Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Cambric Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Cambric Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Cambric Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Cambric Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Cambric Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Cambric Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Cambric Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Cambric Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Cambric Gown, long sleeves, lace and ribbon trimmed—market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....$1.00

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Empire Gown, lace trim, like cut, market price $1.25—Introductory Price.....89c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

Extra Long Chemise, neck and sleeves trimmed with lace, market price $1.50—Introductory Price.....39c

D. CRAWFORD & COMPANY,

WASHINGTON AVENUE AND SIXTH STREET.

PATRICK'S SISTER MAKES HIM A VISIT.

Affectionate Greeting Between Them Within the Grim Walls of the Tombs.

DEFENSE IS FULL OF HOPE.

John T. Milliken of St. Louis Arrives in New York and Places His Fortune at Accused Man's Disposal.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, Feb. 1.—Albert T. Patrick, on trial for the murder of William Marsh Rice, received a visit from his sister, Miss Emma Patrick, in the Tombs to-day. Miss Patrick, who was accompanied by Patrick's former landlady, Mrs. Francis, brought the accused man a number of delicacies. There was a very affectionate greeting between brother and sister.

When Albert T. Patrick on Monday again faces the jury which holds his life in its hands, it will be amid new surroundings, in Part Four of the Court of General Sessions, where Roland B. McInnes was found guilty of murder and sentenced to death. The change from Part 2 was made necessary by the new February term of court, which causes a shift of the General Sessions judges from one court to another.

Patrick's lawyers are busy to-day planning the lines of the defense, which will open next week. The lawyers are said to have practically decided upon one or two bold moves.

DEFENSE MAY DECIDE TO CALL SIX WITNESSES.

Unless the murder of William M. Rice is brought directly to Patrick on evidence other than that of Charles F. Jones, the valet, the counsel for the defense are seriously considering the plan of not calling a witness, but making a motion for the discharge of the defendant on the ground that the crime with which he is charged has not been proved by the State.

The other plan is said to be to put Patrick on the stand and have him make a full and complete statement of his connection with Rice, going into every detail of the case, down to the time of the funeral.

If this plan is adopted it is said that Patrick will admit that in drawing up the will of 1900 Rice had before him the will of 1908.

The defense will, it is said, enlarge upon and accentuate the policy it has all along maintained that a huge conspiracy has been formed by persons eager to secure the Rice millions by making Patrick the scapegoat of a murder charge.

BROTHER-IN-LAW HOLDS CONFERENCE WITH LAWYERS.

John T. Milliken of St. Louis, Patrick's brother-in-law, reached New York to-day. He has the utmost confidence in Patrick's innocence and has informed Robert M. Maers of Patrick's counsel that his bank

CLUBMEN TO CAST LOTS FOR WINDOWS.

Great Demand for Vantage Points in West End From Which to View Coronation Parade.

SOME CLUBS EXCLUDE LADIES.

Eagerness on Part of Members to Witness Gorgeous Pageant May Cause Them to Appear Ungallant—Coronation Questions.

WOULD-BE INDIAN FIGHTER DEFIES MINIONS OF THE LAW.

Philadelphia, Feb. 1.—While Curtis, aged 7, bought himself a big belt, borrowed his father's revolver and started out to hunt Indians. His mother told Policeman Edward Williams about her son's intentions and a boy-hunt began.

When the boy was without street bridge, which spans the Schuylkill, to a 20-foot stairway leading to the railroad tracks. Down these stairs the boy ran. Half way to the bottom he pulled his revolver and threatened to shoot.

The policeman pulled his gun, but the lad would not retreat, holding the stairs for an hour. Strategy was finally resorted to. An assault was made on the little desperado from both ends, and he was captured before he knew it.

He was held for trial in the Juvenile Court. He had tried to run away several times before, his mother testified.

SHAW TAKES OATH OF OFFICE.

New Secretary of Treasury Receives Congratulations.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Washington, Feb. 1.—The portfolio of the Treasury Department changed hands to-day, former Governor Leslie M. Shaw of Iowa succeeding Lyman J. Gage of Chicago as Secretary of the Treasury.

Governor Shaw was sworn in by Justice Shiran of the United States Supreme Court. Nearly all the members of Congress, from Iowa and a throng of bureau chiefs witnessed the ceremony.

As soon as Governor Shaw signed his name to the obligation, Mr. Gage advanced and said:

"Let me congratulate you, Mr. Secretary of the Treasury. I wish you every success."

"Thank you very much," Governor Shaw replied. "I can measure up to my predecessor, I shall be very happy indeed."

MR. SPRAGUE SAYS

The office served at the Delicatessen Lunch Rooms is praised by everybody.

WIDOW OF LATE KING HUMBERT OF ITALY WILL VISIT UNITED STATES INCOGNITO.

Dowager Queen Margherita Seeks Solace for Her Sorrow in Travel—Will Journey Across the Continent to the Pacific Coast.

SPECIAL BY CABLE.

Rome, Feb. 1.—Dowager Queen Margherita has expressed an intention of visiting America, strictly incognito, as the Countess Stuppini.

She will go to New York, Niagara Falls, Yellowstone Park, and perhaps as far West as California.

Her proposed visit to the United States is recommended by her physicians as a means of relief from her sorrow.

Her suite on the trip will include the Marquis Villamarina and her chamberlain, the Marquis Capranica del Grillo, who is a

PEERS TAKING LIFE EASILY.

As is usual at the beginning of a parliamentary session, the House of Lords is taking life easily. The bills which the peers themselves initiate are not usually of prime importance.

CORONATION CHAIR'S FATE.

Among coronation gossips, one of the subjects discussed is what may be done in connection with the historic coronation chair. Before Queen Victoria was crowned there was expressed the wish that the ancient chair might be restored to something of its pristine beauty. This hope again prevails, and the present year may see something done.

HE DRAWS $6 YEARLY.

Certain members of the House of Commons receive public money, though not by virtue of their office as legislators. As recently learned, there are eight.

The Honorable C. R. Spencer was shown to have a yearly allowance of $6 as Captain of the First Volunteer Battalion of the Northamptonshire Regiment. But probably the most extraordinary one on the list is the salary of Mr. O. Partington, who was Captain of the Cheshire Regiment for years. For his services in that capacity he is entitled to draw the munificent sum of $6.

HAY SENDS CONGRATULATIONS.

Gratified by Successful Results of Pan-American Congress.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Washington, Feb. 1.—On receiving news of the adjournment of the Pan-American Congress in Mexico, Secretary Hay sent the following message to Mr. Buchanan, the senior member of the American delegation:

"Please express to the President and members of the conference and to the Mexican Government the gratification of the

SCENE IN THEATER CAUSED HER DEATH.

Wife of Former President Arthur's Law Partner Killed by Excitement.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, Feb. 1.—During the second act of "Du Barry" at the Criterion Theatre, this evening, when Mrs. Leslie Carter, the title role, tore open the wound in the breast of her lover and hid him under the covert of her bed from the gaze of the approaching King, Mrs. Sherman Knevals, of No. 62 East Fifty-eighth street, who was in the audience, gasped and half arose from her seat.

She was led to the ladies' parlor, where she died in a few minutes of heart disease. Mrs. Knevals was 52 years of age. She was the wife of Sherman W. Knevals, a well-known lawyer, of the firm of Knevals & Perry. Mr. Knevals was once the law partner of Chester A. Arthur.

There had never been a suspicion that Mrs. Knevals had any heart trouble. She was seemingly in perfect health when she went to the theater this evening.

Mrs. Knevals was accompanied to the theatre by her two daughters. The three women sat in the orchestra, well down toward the front. During the intermission, after the first act, Mrs. Knevals was bright and cheerful, and chatted with her daughters about the play and the audience.

The climax that so affected Mrs. Knevals is very sudden in the action of the play. The lawyer has made his way to the apartment of the Du Barry in the palace. Her bed, piled high with coverlets, is at one side of the stage.

The lover has a sword wound in the breast. The King approaches. The lover refuses to hide. Du Barry bounds at him, tears open his wound, and as he falls unconscious drags him to the bed and hides him from the theater.

As Mrs. Knevals at this point half arose, her action attracted the attention of her daughters. They caught her by the arms and discovered that she was almost helpless. In the tense excitement of the scene on the stage the auditors did not notice the two young women leading their mother from the theater.

Manager Dillingham met them in the foyer and assisted them to the ladies' parlor. By this time Mrs. Knevals had entirely lost consciousness.

Mr. Dillingham telephoned for Doctor Pitkin, the house physician, and the doctor responded almost at once, but it was too late. Mrs. Knevals expired as he entered the theater.

The scene had unduly excited Mrs. Knevals' heart, Doctor Pitkin said.

EDWIN GOULD MAY START FIGHT ON MATCH TRUST.

He is Said to Have Disposed of All His Diamond Match Stock and Will Not Ask to Remain in the Directory.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—It is stated on very good authority that Edwin Gould has disposed of all his Diamond Match stock and will not be a candidate for re-election as a director at the coming annual meeting.

Mr. Gould's withdrawal from the company so soon after Mr. Webster's resignation as vice president and director, suggests that there must be some special reason for his action.

It is rumored that Mr. Gould will gather in all the independent companies, of which there are about twenty-five, and organize a strong competitor to the Match Trust.

BUSIEST MAN IN DECATUR IS SERVING JAIL SENTENCE.

D. V. Rose Carries On a Large Mail-Order Business, His Wife Filling the Orders From Her Home.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Decatur, Ill., Feb. 1.—One of the busiest men in Decatur is D. N. Rose, in spite of the fact that he is locked up in the County Jail. He receives hundreds of letters and newspapers every day and sends out scores of orders by mail and express.

He is serving a sentence for using the mails to defraud. Before he was arrested he had a big mail-order business in comb, and this he has carried on since he was sentenced to a year's imprisonment. A stenographer goes to the jail every morning and takes dictation for letters about orders and shipments, and his wife fills the orders from her home.

TWO HURT IN SLED ACCIDENT.

Arthur Schneitler and Arnold James Painfully Injured.

Arthur Schneitler of No. 2012 St. Vincent avenue was coasting on Armstrong avenue near Chouteau avenue Friday night when he was run into by another sled, which dashed rapidly down the hill. Schneitler was momentarily stunned. Companions assisted him to the office of Doctor Schuch at No. 230 Chouteau avenue, where it was found that his left knee was strained. The doctor dressed the injury and he returned to his home.

Arnold James, 17 years old, of No. 223 Seventh street, was painfully injured by the collision of two sleds at Ninth and Main streets. His sled was run into by another sled, throwing him to the ground. He received a wound nine inches long over the left eye, and a greater individual interest among the students.

SCENE IN THEATER CAUSED HER DEATH.

Wife of Former President Arthur's Law Partner Killed by Excitement.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, Feb. 1.—During the second act of "Du Barry" at the Criterion Theatre, this evening, when Mrs. Leslie Carter, the title role, tore open the wound in the breast of her lover and hid him under the covert of her bed from the gaze of the approaching King, Mrs. Sherman Knevals, of No. 62 East Fifty-eighth street, who was in the audience, gasped and half arose from her seat.

She was led to the ladies' parlor, where she died in a few minutes of heart disease. Mrs. Knevals was 52 years of age. She was the wife of Sherman W. Knevals, a well-known lawyer, of the firm of Knevals & Perry. Mr. Knevals was once the law partner of Chester A. Arthur.

There had never been a suspicion that Mrs. Knevals had any heart trouble. She was seemingly in perfect health when she went to the theater this evening.

Mrs. Knevals was accompanied to the theatre by her two daughters. The three women sat in the orchestra, well down toward the front. During the intermission, after the first act, Mrs. Knevals was bright and cheerful, and chatted with her daughters about the play and the audience.

The climax that so affected Mrs. Knevals is very sudden in the action of the play. The lawyer has made his way to the apartment of the Du Barry in the palace. Her bed, piled high with coverlets, is at one side of the stage.

The lover has a sword wound in the breast. The King approaches. The lover refuses to hide. Du Barry bounds at him, tears open his wound, and as he falls unconscious drags him to the bed and hides him from the theater.

As Mrs. Knevals at this point half arose, her action attracted the attention of her daughters. They caught her by the arms and discovered that she was almost helpless. In the tense excitement of the scene on the stage the auditors did not notice the two young women leading their mother from the theater.

Manager Dillingham met them in the foyer and assisted them to the ladies' parlor. By this time Mrs. Knevals had entirely lost consciousness.

Mr. Dillingham telephoned for Doctor Pitkin, the house physician, and the doctor responded almost at once, but it was too late. Mrs. Knevals expired as he entered the theater.

The scene had unduly excited Mrs. Knevals' heart, Doctor Pitkin said.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, Feb. 1.—During the second act of "Du Barry" at the Criterion Theatre, this evening, when Mrs. Leslie Carter, the title role, tore open the wound in the breast of her lover and hid him under the covert of her bed from the gaze of the approaching King, Mrs. Sherman Knevals, of No. 62 East Fifty-eighth street, who was in the audience, gasped and half arose from her seat.

She was led to the ladies' parlor, where she died in a few minutes of heart disease. Mrs. Knevals was 52 years of age. She was the wife of Sherman W. Knevals, a well-known lawyer, of the firm of Knevals & Perry. Mr. Knevals was once the law partner of Chester A. Arthur.

There had never been a suspicion that Mrs. Knevals had any heart trouble. She was seemingly in perfect health when she went to the theater this evening.

Mrs. Knevals was accompanied to the theatre by her two daughters. The three women sat in the orchestra, well down toward the front. During the intermission, after the first act, Mrs. Knevals was bright and cheerful, and chatted with her daughters about the play and the audience.

The climax that so affected Mrs. Knevals is very sudden in the action of the play. The lawyer has made his way to the apartment of the Du Barry in the palace. Her bed, piled high with coverlets, is at one side of the stage.

The lover has a sword wound in the breast. The King approaches. The lover refuses to hide. Du Barry bounds at him, tears open his wound, and as he falls unconscious drags him to the bed and hides him from the theater.

As Mrs. Knevals at this point half arose, her action attracted the attention of her daughters. They caught her by the arms and discovered that she was almost helpless. In the tense excitement of the scene on the stage the auditors did not notice the two young women leading their mother from the theater.

Manager Dillingham met them in the foyer and assisted them to the ladies' parlor. By this time Mrs. Knevals had entirely lost consciousness.

Mr. Dillingham telephoned for Doctor Pitkin, the house physician, and the doctor responded almost at once, but it was too late. Mrs. Knevals expired as he entered the theater.

The scene had unduly excited Mrs. Knevals' heart, Doctor Pitkin said.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

New York, Feb. 1.—During the second act of "Du Barry" at the Criterion Theatre, this evening, when Mrs. Leslie Carter, the title role, tore open the wound in the breast of her lover and hid him under the covert of her bed from the gaze of the approaching King, Mrs. Sherman Knevals, of No. 62 East Fifty-eighth street, who was in the audience, gasped and half arose from her seat.

She was led to the ladies' parlor, where she died in a few minutes of heart disease. Mrs. Knevals was 52 years of age. She was the wife of Sherman W. Knevals, a well-known lawyer, of the firm of Knevals & Perry. Mr. Knevals was once the law partner of Chester A. Arthur.

There had never been a suspicion that Mrs. Knevals had any heart trouble. She was seemingly in perfect health when she went to the theater this evening.

Mrs. Knevals was accompanied to the theatre by her two daughters. The three women sat in the orchestra, well down toward the front. During the intermission, after the first act, Mrs. Knevals was bright and cheerful, and chatted with her daughters about the play and the audience.

The climax that so affected Mrs. Knevals is very sudden in the action of the play. The lawyer has made his way to the apartment of the Du Barry in the palace. Her bed, piled high with coverlets, is at one side of the stage.

The lover has a sword wound in the breast. The King approaches. The lover refuses to hide. Du Barry bounds at him, tears open his wound, and as he falls unconscious drags him to the bed and hides him from the theater.

As Mrs. Knevals at this point half arose, her action attracted the attention of her daughters. They caught her by the arms and discovered that she was almost helpless. In the tense excitement of the scene on the stage the auditors did not notice the two young women leading their mother from the theater.

Manager Dillingham met them in the foyer and assisted them to the ladies' parlor. By this time Mrs. Knevals had entirely lost consciousness.

Mr. Dillingham telephoned for Doctor Pitkin, the house physician, and the doctor responded almost at once, but it was too late. Mrs. Knevals expired as he entered the theater.

The scene had unduly excited Mrs. Knevals' heart, Doctor Pitkin said.